- Step 1: Article Information

Type:

Progress Review

Progress Reviews provide concise, efficient overviews covering the latest progresses in a specific research area of applied physics. It can include or be largely based on the recent results from the author(s). Manuscripts should be written as concisely as possible although no limitation on length is specified.

Regular Paper

A Regular Paper is an original paper with comprehensive, detailed descriptions of the research work, presenting a fully developed discussion on the results obtained in relevant fields of applied physics. It must provide sufficient and self-contained information to ensure the repeatability of experiments and analyses by readers. There is no length limit. A Regular Paper should include sections with titles.
